

Should city officials have listed phone numbers?

At the Tuesday night Pahokee City Council meeting, a discussion took place concerning the director of public works having an unlisted telephone number at his residence.

So The Herald-Observer took to the streets of Pahokee to ask passers-by: Do you think a city official should be permitted to have an unlisted home telephone number?

BACKTALK

Backtalk will be a regular feature of the Herald-Observer for the future.
DOROTHY SWEENEY, Canal Point: I would think so. They may not want to be disturbed on Sundays. Anybody could call them any time. I think they deserve time off. They're human, too.

CHERYL MAC TAMNANY, 379 W. Main St., Pahokee: If it's what they want, why not? That's my right, why wouldn't it be their right?

RICHARD OGLE, life insurance agent, Pahokee: I think any individual should have anything they want. But I think they should also have a listed phone. You should be able to reach an elected official.

Hammell announces personnel changes

The promotion of two Hammell newspaper employees and the transfer of two other employees is being announced this week by general manager S. H. Stalls.

Terry Smith of The Clewiston News staff is being named manager of the Belle Glade-Pahokee area publications including the Lakeshore Shield, Lake Leader and Herald-Observer. Smith's additional responsibility will include serving as advertising manager-coordinator of the publications.

Ailsa Dewing, Neighbors feature section editor of The Clewiston News, has been named editor of the Lake Leader and will contribute to the Herald-Observer, edited by Dean Jones. The Leader is an 11,000 free distribution paper in South Bay, Belle Glade and Pahokee.

Smith, advertising manager of The Clewiston News since October, formerly served as advertising sales representative in the Belle Glade-Pahokee area and prior to that worked as sales representative for the Linton Daily Citizen, Linton, Indiana, which is also a Hammell Newspaper.

"Terry is a hard working young man who has proven his capabilities in advertising within the organization. His promotion from within the ranks is a pleasure and just reward for his hard work," Stalls said.

Smith is a native of Norcross, Georgia, graduating from high school there before earning a bachelor of science degree in chemistry from Auburn University. He is a member of Delta Tau Delta fraternity.

Prior to entering the newspaper profession, Smith was employed as public relations representative and safety officer for American Cast Iron Pipe Company in Birmingham, Ala.

His hobbies include golf, tennis and fishing. His wife, Jackie, is employed by M.D. Perry Real Estate, Clewiston.

Smith is filling the vacancy created by the resignation of Biff Lampton, who has accepted employment with the Florida Fresh Water Fish and Game Commission as information officer. Lampton will be moving to West Palm Beach at the end of this month.

Weather radio service is looking better for Glades

By DEAN JONES

The prospects for a radio weather service covering Lake Okeechobee and the Everglades Agricultural Area was apparently "over a hurdle" Tuesday with the strong likelihood of a transmitter being installed in Hookers Point just outside Clewiston.

The transmitter would operate as a slave station from the National Weather Service office at West Palm Beach International Airport and would provide detailed weather reports, updated no less than every 12 hours, for agricultural and boating interests.

The service would fill a void now existing throughout virtually the entire EAA east of the Belle Glade-Pahokee-South Bay area to the LaBelle area on the west and from the southern boundaries of Palm Beach and Hendry Counties on the south to Okeechobee on the north.

The urgent need for a transmitter in the area was established by National Weather Service spokesman from Washington, D.C., Fort Worth, Tex. Miami and West Palm Beach when they came to Belle Glade Sunday night and toured the area Monday and Tuesday morning.

Earl Estelle, chief of public services at the National Weather Service headquarters in Washington, and Lee Falwell, weather radio program manager for NOAA (National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration) in Washington, said maps they had been pursuing before coming to the area indicated all of South Florida south of Lake Okeechobee was swampland.

"This had been an eye-opener," Estelle said. "We had no idea there was this much agriculture in the area."

What remained, once a meeting began in the Sugar Cane Grower's Cooperative of Florida meeting room Tuesday afternoon, was to work out whether the area transmitter was technically and financially feasible.

Cooperative President George Wedgworth, who said he had become interested in the project last year, was one of the primary speakers Tuesday afternoon.

Wedgworth said he was confused because letters he has seen on the proposal indicated the transmitter is impossible. He said he didn't believe anything that can be done is impossible.

Falwell and Estelle said the project isn't impossible but would raise some problems. They also, however, reiterated earlier statements they'd made that they had no money to buy the transmitter, to lease the tower needed, provide the required telephone line from West Palm Beach or pay for maintenance.

Estimated cost for the proposed transmitter have ranged as high as $60,000. Wedgworth said he had been informed the cost would be $40,000 but Estelle said that would also include the transmitter's own recording equipment, something that had already been decided is unneeded.

Estelle said a transmitter of the type now used by the Weather Service can be purchased for $20,000 but he said a comparable transmitter could be bought by other parties for as little as $6,000 to $12,000.

If the less expensive transmitter is bought, he said, someone other than the federal government would also have to pay for the telephone line and maintenance.

"I'm disappointed," Wedgworth said, "because you still say you don't have any funds for the transmitter or maintenance but I have no problem with the capital outlay. If the people in this room put up what they've already spent on this project, we'd have a damn good down payment."

"We could get the $20,000, or the $6,000," he said, "in a matter of a week. It's a question of having the people in the community feeling a part of it."

He suggested the transmitter could be bought as a joint effort of industry and the county government. Former County Commissioner E. W. "Bud" Weaver, who led the Tuesday morning tour and sat in on the afternoon discussion agreed and David Goodlett, administrative

South Bay election is Mar. 4

SOUTH BAY — With almost a week of the qualifying period gone, there are still no candidates for the two seats to be vacated by the Mar. 4 city election.

Up for re-election are Mayor Billy Wells and Vice Mayor-Commissioner Ray Sullivan. Sullivan said Wednesday he plans to become a candidate.

Wells will be running for his third consecutive term, should he qualify, and Sullivan will be running for his fourth term and his second consecutive term.

Sullivan and Wells were both elected in hard-fought runoffs in Sept. 1977. That was the last city election set in September for South Bay. It was the election in which the residents decided in a referendum to hold the elections in March and was also the first city

Eight years ago come this March I came to the Glades, young and innocent and believing I would stick around long enough to sample the fishing, then be on my way.

Something went wrong with those plans. Somewhere along the way I acquired a wife and family. At some point during those eight years, I fell in love with Lake Okechobee and her people.

Now it is time to say goodbye. I have accepted another job and another challenge but I will not be far away and I vow to return often to renew the roots I have set down in the rich mudlands.

The towns of the lake, Moore Haven, Clewiston, South Bay, Belle Glade and Pahokee, have been good to me. But more than that, they have taught me respect and matured me as a man.

In those eight years I have learned a lot about Okechobee-land. I have spent hours in conversations with old timers. I have poured over old newspapers and read the books of the pioneers.

A year ago I began a monumental task. I undertook to write a book of fiction of the development of Okechobee Lake. The book may never be published. But I must write it. It will be an honest account of the fascinating history of this region and in this, the last Cornerstones, I would like to share a portion of it with you.

Ham knelt in the shallows, gently shoving aside the tall stalks of grass. With his hand he dug into the bottom and felt the richness and texture of the soil as it dribbled through his fingers.

"Dry this out and I'll bet it would grow anything," he mused.

"Take a heap of dryin'," said Jacob.

He looked up from the water and stared intently at the man seated on a fallen log. "It could be done. It wouldn't be easy, but it could be done, Jacob."

Jacob did not reply. He took out his pipe and began to charge it with tobacco.

"Who owns this land?"

"What land?" Jacob asked, striking fire to his pipe.

"All this land, Okechobee-land. All this we've been through the past couple of weeks."

"I reckon it belongs to the state. It got sold once, timber company bought it. But it wasn't long 'fore the state had it again."

"You don't own anything, do you? Not even as much land as your house sits on."

"Never did see reason to buy it," said Jacob. "Way things are now, don't have no taxes to pay."

Ham grinned at the undeniable truth. He stood and waded up onto the island and sat down on the log. Picking up a stick, he drew a rough map of the lake in the dirt. "You best buy your land, Jacob, now while it's cheap. It ain't gonna be cheap much longer."

"You buyin'?"

"I've been thinking about it." "Figured that." Jacob blew a plume of smoke into the breeze.

"I've been watchin' you these past weeks, Ham. Been seein' you measurin' this country with your eyes. You see things the rest of us don't. Towns here, pasture there, crops growin'." If anybody can change this country, I figure it'll be you. Kinda hate to see it go, though.

"Why is that, Jacob?"

"I've been here a long time, Ham. When I come here, it was beautiful country in a wild kind of way. Still is. You've seen it for yourself, now. Even with all of us runnin' cattle through here, we ain't changed much. Our cows may eat down the grass a bit, but it grows right back up. Everything's still pretty much like we found it."

Ham listened, not daring to interrupt as the old cattin paused to let his words sink in.

"Now you're gonna change it. Gonna bring in people and towns and crops. I ain't sayin' that's bad, Ham. Knew it was comin' all along. Those of us who'll stay will have to change, too. We may not want to, but we'll have to."

"That's all in the air, Jacob. Paused a minute, but it's all gonna be here. Ain't nothin' but time."

"There was another pause as Jacob took a puff on his pipe. You go ahead and bring in your people, see Cornerstones 10A.

Opinion

Weather service is badly needed

A picture, it has been said, is worth a thousand words and it was gratifying Tuesday to know the powers that be in the National Weather Service received a picture this week that convinced them of the need for one of their radio stations in this area.

Lake Okechobee fishermen and Glades farmers have been convinced for some time now they would be well served by a radio service that updates weather reports at least every 12 hours but the bureaucrats in Washington were hard to convince.

They were saying for awhile, in fact, that it would be impossible to provide the service, even if we did need it. And they apparently weren't convinced there was a need anyhow.

After all, they'd been looking at maps, up in their Washington D.C. offices, which showed the entire area as sawgrass swampland. They expressed amazement Tuesday morning that there were a number of people earning their livelihood by farming the area and that there were cities around Lake Okechobee that weren't built on stilts.

The eyeopening tour they took of the area agri-industry, which started when they flew in Sunday night and wound up Tuesday evening, quickly convinced them there are a number of people who get around the Glades by car rather than pirogue and airboat and that those people and others coming into the area to fish Lake Okechobee need some kind of warning of severe weather.

It hasn't been that long, for instance, when Glades farmers lost more than $100 million worth of crops in one night of a hard freeze. No one knows how much of that $100 million loss could have been averted by an earlier warning but it certainly would have amounted to more than the cost of installing a station which could have given them that warning.

It's also hard to say how many lives could have been saved over the years if a weather radio service had existed that could have warned fishermen the treacherous waters of the big lake were going to be churned up by high winds but it goes without saying some lives could have been saved.

The insurance claims alone would have certainly outweighed the cost of the service and that's not considering the worth of the lives themselves.

But no service was available. The Everglades Agricultural Area and Lake Okechobee have been caught in a dead zone between coverage provided by stations in Fort Myers and West Palm Beach.

The vivid picture drawn during the officials' tour of the area of the need for service here had the benefit of reducing the problem of providing the service needed from the realm of impossibility to the realm of the merely difficult.

As a matter of fact, the solution may not even be all that difficult although the tab for installing and maintaining the service may have to be picked up by local agencies rather than the national service which has been charged by Congress with providing said service.

That, as George Wedgworth said, is disappointing but, as Bud Weaver said, we can live with it.

The major hurdle of proving the area qualifies for the service, and that it can be justified, was overcome by convincing a handful of officials who had been looking at pictures of the area that indicated there was nothing but swamp here.

A picture, as they say, is worth a thousand words but only if it's an accurate picture.

Building needed

Of all the many causes one encounters in the Glades, few are more in need or more worthy than the GAARC (Glades Area Association for Retarded Citizens), one reason we find it so easy to support the GAARC building fund.

The GAARC has already demonstrated itself to be an efficient organization bringing a number of needed services to the area but its efficiency would be vastly enhanced by bringing all the services under one roof easily identifiable in the community.

The old St. Peters Lutheran Church building on West Canal Street South would be a dandy site for the Association and it's available for a reasonable price.

The GAARC has already swung a loan for the building and the main catch right now is the $40,000 needed for a down payment, closing costs and roof repairs and Director Tricia Blash is already mapping out a campaign to collect that money.

Ms. Blash has already come up with a number of fund-raisers but there's nothing to stop people who want to make donations... donations they could say were some of the best they ever made.

CRACKER CRUMBS

BY DEAN JONES

Some day, as all disciples of Brother Dave Gardner know, the animals may take over the world and, considering the events of recent weeks, I'm not too sure at all the day is all that far off.

Take me for instance... please, before the guys in the white coats do.

Not too long ago, I fell heir to, which is another way of saying I was suckered into taking, a cat. Well, not really a cat but she ain't the kitten that was advertised either.

Now this is the first I've taken on since I moved away from Mama's hearth and apron strings and it bears all the markings of being the last.

Don't get me wrong, I'm not one of those good old boys who train their pit bull dogs by stringing a cat up from the nearest clothes line and getting the pit bull pup to attack the cat and kill it in spite of getting clawed.

On the otherhand, I'll have to go along with the comment I heard not too long ago to the effect that cats were placed on this earth for little girls.

I know Nibs has disproven the old myth they were put on this world to catch mice.

Nibs (I named her Nibs after running through a list of other names because she thinks she's a freakin' queen) was foisted off on me at a time when I was overrun by mice... a weak point indeed.

I'm still overrun by mice. That darn cat thinks mice are great play toys when she gets tired of playing with 'em, she eats 'em but I have come to the conclusion she has the same mentality as the people who think steaks are created in plastic-wrapped packages.

She thinks mice are great little toys-cum-morsels I'm supposed to provide her from the mouse traps I keep setting. She's only caught one that I know anything about.

Besides that, Nibs has started getting some bad habits like trying to take over my own easy chair. I did manage to discourage her from jumping on the sofa with all claws extended and I'm inhabiting the sofa already.

By the time she peeled herself off the wall and looked up to see me checking her again, she decided to climb over the underside of the bed in the spare bedroom-store room. I let her out 24 hours later and she hasn't charged the sofa again... at least while I was there.

But I still have the idea that I'm gonna come home one of these days and catch her sitting in the recliner, tipping a suds, watching television and cussing while she knocks the ash off a Winston.

And if that scene sounds a little incongruous, it doesn't when you hear about what happened last weekend in South Africa.

Seems there was a Cape Town family who decided to go out for a picnic and instead of attractants, ants, they attracted a troop of baboons who chased their business cousin away from their bags of provender, then started scattering things over the ground.

When the family slowed down enough to look over their shoulders, they saw the baboons throwing away the food and making off with nothing but beer, wine and cigarettes. Later on, presumably after the baboons had gotten tanked up enough, they came back and stole the keys to the family car, leaving the family to hoof it back to Cape Town.

Personally, I'll take ants or even rats.

Anybody who's ever been in my office may have seen a copy of Desiderata hanging on the wall. You know, the thing that starts off with "Go placidly amid the noise and haste and remember what peace there may be in silence."

Well, I came across the updated version the other day and thought I'd share it with my readers. Here goes.

Go placidly amid the noise and waste and remember what comfort there may be in owning a piece thereof. Avoid quiet and passive persons unless you are in need of sleep. Rotate your tires. Speak glowingly of those greater than yourself and heed well their advice even though they be turkeys; know what to kiss and when. Consider that two wrongs never make a right.

No goodbyes

Old police chiefs, as retiring Charlie Goodlett said Friday night, aren't like generals of the army. They don't just fade away. Sometimes they don't even go away.

"Chief Charlie," as he's been known a good part of the 32 years he headed up the city police force, went on to say he's a part of Belle Glade and we'll be seeing him around for awhile yet.

The implications of that statement is welcome news to us here at the Herald-Observer.

Chief Charlie was careful to give credit to city commissioners, the public, his officers and the press for any successes he had during the 32 years he was serving the residents of Belle Glade.

Some of the credit may be due those parties but the fact of the matter is that a good amount of his success was due to no one but Chief Charles Goodlett. If, as he said, the press has been kind, he made it easy.

The degree of respect he has earned in Belle Glade and throughout the county was indicated by the number of people (200) who showed up for the roast and dinner honoring him at his retirement, the number of roasters (20) who took part in the roast and where they came from (as far away as Miami and Orlando).

There was a great deal of hilarity during the roast, with Chief Charlie taking good-natured jibes from every direction but most of the roasters took at least a fraction of their time to get serious and the one word used more than any other probably summed up Charlie's reputation.

The description used more than any other was "integrity."

Integrity is a quality Charles Goodlett should know something about because he possesses it in abundance at a time when all too many public officials don't even seem to understand the definition, much less the importance, of the word.

That may be why the quality is valued so highly when it is found.

At any rate, Charles Goodlett retired last week but he made it plain the roast was no farewell. He intends to be around for awhile and if the public wants to say goodbye, they're going to have to find someone else.

And that's good news.

THE COLD FIGHTERS... WHAT ARE THEY?

There are products for fighting many different cold symptoms. In this ad, and in following ads we will tell you about some of them.

Anesthetics -- These are pain relievers. They cut fever and reduce aches and pains. Usually they contain aspirin or an aspirin substitute which provokes less stomach upset.

Cough suppressants -- These reduce the desire to cough. But coughing is a reflex to rid the lungs of congestion, and if it is not a dry cough which brings up nothing, it should not be suppressed entirely.

Blue Devils now 7-5

Twelve games into the cage season, the Pahokee Blue Devils are hanging on to their third-place ranking in the conference with a 7-5 record.

Couch Eddie Rhodes said of the games the Devils have lost, the worst was by only 12 points and most were a point or two.

Rhodes was faced this season with a green team led by only two returning players, those being Calvin Fountain and Leonard Banks. Banks is averaging eight points and nine rebounds per game while Fountain leads in rebounds with a 13 average.

Top shooter for the Devils is Boris Banks with 18 per game. The other two starters are Nathaniel Hannah and Lonnie Pendergrass.

The second squad - "Mod Squad" - is composed of Albert Pringle, Terrence Banks, Clinton Wilson, Mandy Llorens and Lorenzo Tate.

In front of Pahokee in the conference right now is North Shore and Suncoast, both AAA schools. Of the 23 games scheduled this year, only two are against teams in Pahokee's classification.

"Our problem is our immaturity," said Rhodes. "Some of my players had never before played basketball until this year."

Taking it From the Top

By REV. DAVID T. EVANS
Everglades Presbyterian Church

By Rev. David T. Evans
Everglades Presbyterian Church
Well, the world is into the 80's. As soon as the superbowl game is over we will put the 70's finally to rest.

Yet the 70's will be written about a long time. It was a time when a United States President resigned and a man who had not been elected president or vice president became President of the United States.

The 70's was the time when South Vietnam was turned over to the communists of North Vietnam after thousands of U.S. soldiers had died to try to save a country a treaty had established.

The 70's have left a legacy in the Middle East. Fifty hostages are being held captive in a U.S. Embassy in Iran. Soviet troops have invaded the small country of Afghanistan nominally to support a government which was going to fall to rebels.

The President of the U.S. is trying to put pressure on the Iranians to release the hostages and pressure on the Soviets to withdraw from Afghanistan. The OPEC Nations are continuing to fuel inflation with high priced oil.

What's going to happen? What can we hope? Is there any room for hope?

I say there is hope. For Christ is still trying to solve world problems without war.

There is still hope when great foundations are working toward solving the cause of cancer, diabetes, and many other diseases.

There is still hope when there is freedom of the press and we can know what is going on in the world and when people still want the truth.

There is still hope when thousands, even millions attend churches throughout the world over the Christmas season and continue to do so into the New Year.

There is still hope when people go out in the world to spread the good news which is still good that God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten son that whosoever loved Him should not die but have everlasting life.

There is hope and love as we have faith in God's ultimate purpose.

There are millions who have faith. Let's carry on and express our faith whenever we can right here in the Glades.

Here's a photograph taken from a kayak. You don't bring a ship this close to an iceberg! For underwater the tentacles of this cruel, cold monster may reach out a mile or more.

Life for some folks is a succession of narrow escapes. But these are adventures we can do without. They don't prove us bold sailors. They simply prove us poor navigators.

Frightened men sometimes turn to religion as a refuge when dangers — moral, spiritual and physical — loom too close for comfort. God does not fail us in crisis.

But the every-day function of faith is to pilot men on a true course through the sea of life. The Church cannot sweep away icebergs. It warns us of their whereabouts and helps us give them a wide berth.

Defense keying Glades Central girls wins

BELLE GLADE—A stingy 1-3-1 zone defense that's held opponents to an average of 35 points is the major reason the Glades Central High School girls basketball team has an unbeaten 7-0 record so far this year, with Pahokee being the girls' latest victim Monday night.

Coach Steve Cohen said the girls 74-33 win over the feminine Blue Devils was put in the bag during the second quarter, when the disaffiliated Raiders ran up a 28-4 score for the period.

Cynthia Harrell, who doesn't score that much, made 12 of 14 points in that period and Joy Burroughs and Sheila Ashley each made eight points in the second quarter.

Two other girls scoring in double digits were Cynthia Harrell with 7-0-14 and Sheila Ashley with 7-2-16. They were followed by Mary West with 2-0-4, Jessica Hansford with 3-2-8 and Gloria Stewart with 2-4-8.

Worth girls team Saturday, but Cohen said the 50-39 score was the closest this year.

He said the Lake Worth team hurt itself at the foul line, making only 13 of 21 attempts.

Cohen said Gloria Stewart, a freshman player who stands 5'11", was another bright spot on the Raider team, making eight points and 13 rebounds for the game.

The Glades Central girls also knocked off the Class AAAA Lake

Individually, the Pahokee girls team was led by Patsy Lee with four field goals, three free throws and 11 points. She was followed by Inger Brown at 3-0-6, Sheila Pettigrew at 3-0-6, Sharon Powell at 1-2-4, Isabelle Jackson at 2-2-6.

BELLE GLADE — An obviously improving Glades Central boys basketball team edged out Atlantic High School, 57-54 Friday night, then dropped a 60-55 decision against second ranked North Shore after pulling within two points in the third period.

Glades Central Coach Jay Seider said a technical foul, when the Raiders were driving upcourt, when they were trailing only by a field goal in the third quarter, may have made the difference in the game.

The Raiders are now 3-8 for the season and have a 2-2 record in conference play. They play Cardinal Newman at home Friday and play Westwood away Saturday night.

CDS girls undefeated

BELLE GLADE — The Christian Day School girls basketball team is still undefeated today as they take on area rival Glades Day School at 7 p.m. tonight, following a matchup between the junior varsity Gators and Crusaders.

four, Freddy Alvarez with four and three, William Harvey with three and one, Tony Duboy with three and one, Alex Hermida with two and two and Carlos Soler with two and one.

The lady Crusaders' last win came Monday at the expense of Moore Haven, a doubleheader which saw the Terriers' junior high team beat the CDS junior high.

LaSitter said he was pleased with the boys' performance against Moore Haven Friday night even though they lost, 72-66.

Both the JV and the varsity teams lost to Benjamin in Monday night games, leaving the Christian Day teams with a 7-0 record for the girls, 7-4 for the varsity, 2-2 for the junior varsity and 0-1 for the junior high team.

"We were really cold with our shooting in the first half," he said. "We were down, 45-19 but we came back and outscored them in the second half, 47-27 but we couldn't make up for the first half."

Athletic Director Ken LaSitter said Joni Davis was the high scorer for the girls against Moore Haven, making 15 points and 14 rebounds, 12 of those points coming in the second half after four fouls were called against her in the first half.

Crews was the high scorer with 18 points and 11 rebounds, followed closely by Jesus Armos with a 17-7 performance and Bill Taylor with 16 points and four rebounds. Taylor made 15 of those points in the third quarter.

Paula Anderson, with 10 points and 10 rebounds, was the only Crusader to score in double figures, being followed by Lisa Acree with five points and seven rebounds, Sylvia McCall with four and one, and Tammy Campbell with three and eight.

Other scoring was by Kent Davis with five points and five rebounds, Carlos Soler, 6-2; Freddy Alvarez with two points and Alex Hermida, 2-3.

The boys varsity team ended its week with a 62-54 loss against Benjamin. LaSitter said the game was lost at the foul line. "They shot 22 points for 32 attempts," he said. "We made 21 field goals for their 20 but we couldn't make up for their free throws."

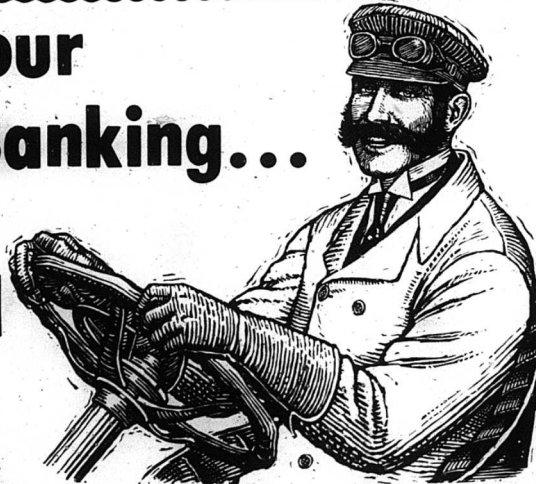

Junior Varsity coach Gus Harmon said the 50-41 score of the Benjamin game would have been a lot closer but for foul problems in the last minute of the game.

Jesus Armos was the high scorer for the Crusaders, making 20 points and three rebounds. He was followed by Bill Taylor with 14 and seven, Kent Davis with six and Tavi Garcia was the leading scorer against Benjamin for CDS, making 17 points, eight rebounds and six assists. Louis Garcia was the only other double digit scorer, making 15 points and 15 rebounds. They were followed by Stewart Hattison with six points, four rebounds and one steal, Roly Ramos with four rebounds and one steal, Juan Armos with one point, two rebounds and three steals.

Earning the title of

Smokeater

GOING IN

Belle Glade EMT's Pat Imbimbo and Doug Manger dress for the smoke drill.

Heading into the smoke-filled house.

BELLE GLADE—When you call a firefighter a "smokeater," say it with awe and respect. It's a hard-won title.

Three instructors and 14 firemen proved this Monday when they took part in a smoke drill -- just one phase of a 200-hour course leading to certification as a firefighter--conducted by the South Technical Education Center of the Palm Beach County School System.

The training session took place on Bethune Street in Okeechobee Center in a dilapidated frame house already slated for razing.

Outside the boarded-up stilt house the sun shone down on a crisp blue and green day. From under the eaves of the house drifted wisps of smoke, to give only a hint of the thick smoke filling the pitch-dark interior where wet hay smoldered without bursting into flame.

Most of the rookie firemen were from the coast and their attention was caught by the tremendous bonfire of a burning cane field in the distance, billowing its smoke skyward.

They paid scant attention to the smoking house they'd soon be going into.

But for an onlooker, there was real drama taking place inside the silent smoke-filled building where a training instructor lay in the suffocating heat and darkness awaiting "rescue" by a two-man team of students.

As the simulated rescue took place, the only sound to be heard was an occasional bell ringing -- a warning to one of the gas-masked firefighters inside that his oxygen supply was down to a four-or-five minute supply, at most.

Minutes passed before a series of thumps announced the would-be rescuers were approaching the door, dragging the instructor-victim in tow. Then a rattling of the doorlatch as gloved hands fumbled to open it. And as the door swung inward, three men would emerge from the smoky interior -- two half-stumbling down the steps, their arms interlocked with the victim's, to slide him down the steps on his back head first.

Once outside, the firefighters rapidly stripped off masks, peeling off insulated coats and sweat-soaked shirts, while helping hands removed the oxygen tanks then they dropped to the grass for a breather. Some lit up cigarettes.

But there would be the occasional student rescuer who dropped to his knees gasping for air, partially overcome by the heat and smoke, retching from the fumes he'd swallowed.

They were the ones who had lost contact with their oxygen supply during the search in the confusion of the buddy-system for sharing one oxygen tank.

As one rookie explained, "You can't see a thing in there. You follow the wall on your right on the theory that eventually you'll return to the entrance. You're groping for a body lying in there and you can't even see the guy you're with."

At the same time, one man of the team has to keep a finger on the oxygen release button or his buddy's air supply is cut off.

For the three training officers who play the role of victim, lying around smoke-filled buildings awaiting rescue is a routine business.

"I've been doing this for 28 years," said one instructor, Bill Dowling, who would do three repeat performances during that class session alone.

For the 14 trainees, including Pat Imbimbo, Ray Herr, and Doug Manger, all of Belle Glade, the smoke drill was the next-to-the-last ordeal in the five-week training course before taking the final written exam.

Their ultimate test will be to escape from the same house on Bethune Street -- while it goes up in flames.

Eating smoke doesn't make for a well-balanced meal.

COMING OUT

The "victim" is brought out.

Ray Herr gets a glad hand for a job well done.

Back in October of last year I somehow got talked into being Den Leader for a group of Cub Scouts.

Don't ask me how. I dimly remember attending the first sign up meeting. My memory becomes very cloudy after that. I do remember agreeing that "yes, there did seem to be a shortage of mothers willing to help form new groups, and yes it was a shame that if no one volunteered to be Den Leader, the poor little tykes would have their dreams shattered of ever becoming Cub Scouts, not to mention Boy Scouts."

What keeps me awake nights though, is wondering how I was wandgled into the job of Den Leader.

Taking all things into consideration though, it hasn't been too bad. Granted that right along with my son I had to learn the Cub Scout Promise and the Law of the Pack, it has proven to be a worthwhile endeavor.

FROM THE GRAPEVINE

By BRENDA BUNTING

Cub Scout programs across the country have helped to build character and a sense of worth for these young boys.

Along with the projects and skits the boys are required to do, the Cub Scout program encourages honesty, loyalty to God and country, and obeying the rules and laws of the organization.

This year is the 50th anniversary of Boy Scouts of America and we hope to make it a banner year.

In memory of the 50 years, the scouts are going to try to collect old snapshots of former cub scout and boy scout members and other paraphernalia about scouting.

If you have been a Cub or Boy Scout and have items that might be of interest, let me know. It will help the boys understand the history of scouting.

We are glad to note that we have a much needed new addition to our staff. Starting this week, Ailsa Dewing, a long time staffer with our Clewiston paper, will be adding her expertise to the Lake Leader. Ailsa will be the Editor of the Leader. Welcome aboard Ailsa!

Radio

aide to County Commission Chairman Bill Bailey said he and Bailey had discussed the matter and felt the county commission would join in the effort.

Goodlett stressed, however, that Bailey represented only one fifth of the commission and the matter hasn't been brought before the commission as a whole.

Falwell offered several alternative ways to provide the service without interfering too much with existing stations in West Palm Beach, Miami and Fort Myers.

He said his recommendation would be to maintain the Fort Myers station as it now is, to change the West Palm Beach station frequency to 16647.5 megahertz, the same as that used by Fort Myers, and assign West Palm Beach's 16640.5 megahertz to the Glades area transmitter. Miami is assigned to 16645.5 megahertz, the only other frequency the National Weather Service has available.

Falwell also noted three towers had been suggested as possible sites for the transmitter, the 582 foot tower east of Clewiston, a 350 foot tower in Belle Glade and a tower in Pahokee said to be 200 feet tall.

He said the Pahokee site was more desirable, geographically but the extra height offered by the Clewiston location would probably make it more desirable overall.

Wedgworth said the Clewiston tower, owned by the South Florida Water Management District, has been checked out and it is available for lease at the rate of 25 cents per foot of altitude at which the antenna would be placed, per month, making it $145 per month for an antenna mounted at the 580 foot level.

Estelle said there is a possibility the state Civil Defense would take on the job of maintaining the transmitter. He said that agency already maintains weather service stations in Fort Myers, Gainesville and Melbourne.

Weaver said the primary reason he's been attempting to get the service since he served on the county commission is to make the weather service available to anyone for the price of a battery powered radio cube, an item one person said is available at popular outlets for $17.95.

He said last week that even if the station costs $60,000, that's a relatively small outlay considering the freeze in 1976 that cost area farmers $100 million in one night.

Charles Wilson of South Bay Growers also pointed out before the Tuesday morning tour that two Belle Glade fishermen died on the lake two years ago. He said they were experienced fishermen and probably wouldn't have died if they'd had advance warning of the weather on the lake.

The Tuesday morning tour included a film about South Bay Growers, a visit to a South Bay Growers farming operation south of South Bay on US 27 and a tour of the Cooperative sugar mill.

Pahokee council hears water complaints

PAHOKEE—City commissioners were harangued for almost an hour Tuesday night by an irate resident whose water meter was removed at Christmas time and who had received notice this month that water service would again be disconnected unless payment is received.

In an effort to clear some $50,000 off the books in overdue water bills, the city served warning last month that meters would be removed where bills had remained unpaid for three months.

Paul Hazen appeared before commissioners to protest what he charges was "discrimination" in the city's policy, claiming that some meters were being removed while others were only turned off.

City Clerk Betty McCoy responded in part to Hazen's charges, contending that the city lacks sufficient personnel to remove as many meters a day as there are delinquent accounts, and meters are therefore removed according to a listing.

Hazen appeared at the session with a copy of the delinquent list. He said he had checked with some of the people whose names appeared on the first page and that their meters were not removed while his had been although his name appeared on the second page.

election in which the Votamatic polling system was used and the last election held in the old city hall.

Wells won his second term of office in a 268-238 runoff victory over Doris Sanford Davis. Sullivan won his runoff over Thomas P. Adams by a 280-246 margin after Adams, in the first election that year, lacked only two votes to win over both Sullivan and John Junior Meadows.

City Clerk Virginia Walker said the qualifying period for candidates began Friday, Jan. 4 and will end at 5 p.m. Feb. 18.

In the meantime, would-be voters have until Feb. 3, 30 days before the election, to become registered to cast their ballots.

Mrs. Walker said candidates must be at least 18 years of age, must take a candidate's oath, must supply proof of permanent residence in the city and must pay a $25 qualifying fee.

The election will take place from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Mar. 4 at the city hall, located at 335 S.W. Second Ave. In the event no candidate receives a majority of the votes cast for the office in question, a runoff will be held on Mar. 11.

The seats being vacated are at-large and group numbers will be assigned on the basis of alphabetical listing of the incumbents so Sullivan will be in Group One and Wells will be in Group Two.

BENITO A. RONBAOA
BELLE GLADE—Funeral services for Benito A. Ronbaoa, a resident of the Glades area for 35 years, were held Tuesday, Jan. 8 at the Mixson Funeral Chapel with the Rev. Zary Shelly, pastor of the Chosen Missionary Baptist Church, officiating.

December to move to Houston, Texas.

During the last 15 months, Ms. Dewing has served in various capacities in Clewiston including general assignment reporter, photographer, social writer and as editor of the Neighbors feature section. Prior to coming to Clewiston from Orlando, Ms. Dewing served as production editor of an in-house publication of the Institute of Internal Auditors, Inc. Before that, she worked as general news reporter for the Miami Beach Times. She has also been employed by the Miami Herald, the State University of New York, the Syracuse Herald American in Syracuse, N.Y. and the Endicott Daily Bulletin, Endicott, N.Y.

The promotion of Ms. Dewing is a pleasure because of her desire to assume a more meaningful responsibility within the organization.

"Her addition to the talents of Dean Jones, Alma Henry and Brenda Bunting will assure residents of the Belle Glade, Pahokee and South Bay areas of continued leadership in editorial quality and quantity in the Shield, Leader and Herald Observer," Stalls said.

Additional personnel changes will involve the reassignment of Sherri Denning from The Clewiston News to advertising manager of the Caloosa Belle in LaBelle. Kathy Warr, who has been working in LaBelle, will resume working advertising accounts in Clewiston along with Linda Greer. Ms. Denning, a resident of LaBelle, requested the change several weeks ago so that she could be closer to her children.

Glade with Dr. Marvin Sweat officiating.

Rev. Evans was a native of Richland. He was 89 years of age and made his home at 1000 Whitaker Road in Belle Glade. He died Dec. 30 in his home.

Survivors include a daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Roswell Harrington of Belle Glade; a son, Wallace Evans of Santa Clara, Cal. and a grandson, Jeffery Harrington of Belle Glade.

Wetherington Funeral Home of Pahokee was in charge of arrangements.

Ham. It's comin' anyway. All you're gonna do is hurry up the times a bit."

That exchange between Hamilton Dosley, developer, and Jacob Mison, cattleman, did not occur in the real history of Okeechobeland.

But it could have. And Diston's dream did not bear fruit because he did not live.

Others came behind Ham and Okeechobeland did change. And that's what "Sawgrass" will be about.

So you can see that while I will no longer live in the Glades, I have 300 pages (so far) of vested interest in Okeechobeland. "Sawgrass," my book, will keep my heart close to you.

but that three do. Wherever possible, put people on hold. Be comforted that in the face of all aridity & disillusionment and despite the changing fortunes of time, there is always a big fortune in computer maintenance. Remember the Pueblo. Strive at all times to bend, fold, spindle and mutilate. Know yourself; if you need help, call the FBI. Exercise caution in daily affairs, especially with those persons closest to you. That lemon on your left, for instance. Be assured that a walk through the ocean of most souls would scarcely get your feet wet. Fall not in love therefore; it will stick to your face. Gracefully surrender the things of youth, birds, clean air, tuna, Taiwan; and let not the sands of time get in your lunch. Hire people with books. For a good time, call 686-4311 and ask for Ken. Take heart amid the deepening gloom that your dog is finally getting enough cheese; and reflect that whatever misfortune may be your lot, it could only be worse in Milwaukee. You are a fluke of the universe; you have no right to be here, and whether you hear it or not, the universe is laughing behind your back. Therefore, make peace with your God, whatever you conceive Him to be; Hairy Thunderer or Cosmic Muffin. With all its hopes, dreams, promises & urban renewal, the world continues to deteriorate. Give up.

MANNING L. KEEN, president of Keen Development Co., Pahokee: Not if the city's paying for it, they shouldn't. Hell no. But if it's a private individual, then it's none of my business. I wish you'd ask me about the city turning off the water meters. I was home sick, vomiting blood, when they turned the one off here at the laundromat. The whole city hall needs sweeping out except for the police chief and the new attorney.
